"SIGNAL WHEN YOU TURN"

Chief John A. Papendick this week ordered Grayling policemen to step up enforcement against drivers who fail to give a signal when they are turning left or right.

He pointed out that the traffic law requires that the driver, before turning shall drive his car into the proper lane "and before stopping or materially varying the course in which he is proceeding," shall give a warning signal either by extending the arm in an outstretched horizontal position or by using a directional signal device to signify his intentions.

"Failure to signal produces two chief results," Chief Papendick said. "It is a violation of the law which causes a great number of accidents. Secondly, it causes more frayed tempers, which in turn produce accidents, than any other violation."

He emphasized that this was not to be considered a crackdown. It is merely enforcement of a law, which is too often violated. Failure to signal is probably the chief "gripe" of drivers in our area, he said.

He cited a typical example of how this violation produces bad tempers and jangled nerves.

"A driver pulling up to make a left turn fails to signal, thereby holding up the driver behind him," he said. "The driver in the rear starts to blow his horn, more insistently the longer he is held up. The first driver, who should have signaled is held up by oncoming traffic, and becomes irritated at the hornblower behind him. Muttering angrily to himself, he finally gets an opportunity to completely pass the hornblower. He is also talking to himself as he goes forward. This is the mood that too often leads to accidents."

An educational program emphasizing the importance of giving signals is now being conducted by the police and the State Safety Commission. It stresses that the four steps in proper sequence to make a safe and legal turn are: (1) Observation (2) Pulling into the proper lane (3) Giving a signal well in advance, and (4) Completing the turn when safe.

Lovells Man Murders Ex - Wife Then Commits Suicide

Woman Dies At Mercy Hospital

Mrs. Mary Brant, 27, wounded by her ex-husband Warren, 48, last Wednesday noon at their home in Lovells passed away at Grayling Mercy Hospital on Sunday completing a murder-suicide story. Her ex-husband took his own life with a shooting blast with an hour of shooting his victim. Mrs. Brant's condition was termed as "critical" from the moment she was brought to the hospital and little hope was held for her due to internal injury when the shotgun pellets tore into her chest and side from a distance of about two feet.

The husband, Warren, 48, shot

A W O L, Admits Church Thefts

A South Carolina man who said he was absent without leave from the Army was arrested by State Police last week near Mount Clemens and held there after he had admitted several church robberies in smaller Michigan communities including the theft from St. Mary's Church in Grayling.

James Lee Knight, 26, who first gave his name as Lawrence R. Stone, said he operated in small towns where it was likely the robberies would be unattended during services.

Knight was arrested by state police Monday near Romeo on a routine check after he was found sleeping in his car. Found also in the car were $500 and collection envelopes from Churches in Sparta, St. Johns, Hudson, Albion, Harrison, Grayling, Harrisville, Hart and Watervliet.

State police said Knight confessed church robberies in a half dozen states since last summer when he left Fort Jackson, S. C. He was held at the Macomb County jail for army authorities.

The officers said that after Mrs. Brant had been granted her divorce and the right to use her maiden name she had gone to her home with several relatives to remove her belongings.

Accompanying her were her stepbrother, Nick Cikusa, Steward Woodward and Frank McLaughlin all of Chicago. Following an argument Brant ordered all but his wife to leave the home, pointing a shotgun at them. As the other four left the dwelling he fired the gun at his wife and she fell, wounded, to the floor.

The three men rushed back into the house and struggled with Brant for the weapon. In the melee Brant struck Cikusa over the head with the gun, causing a severe scalp injury that required treatment at the hospital. Diana Cikusa was knocked down and Brant threatened to shoot her. Woodward finally wrested the gun from Brant and McLaughlin hid the weapon in a woodpile. Brant then obtained another gun, went out the back door and fired at the group as they left to take Mrs. Brant to the hospital. Sheriff Gornick and his son William Jr. were informed of the shooting and went to Brant's home. Approaching cautiously they found Brant's body lying in back of the dwelling. Death was caused by a blast from his own shotgun.

Brant's body was taken to Sorenson Funeral home at Grayling, and his brother, Alex Brant of Midland, was notified.

The body was taken Wednesday night to the Charles D. Peck Funeral home at Bloomingdale, Mich. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the Peck Funeral home and burial was expected to be in the Bloomingdale cemetery.

Mrs. Brant's body was taken to the Sorenson Funeral Home at her death and shipped on the mid-night train to the Compari Funeral Home in Chicago. Services were to be held from the funeral home on Wednesday.

At this point, League President Harold Jarman called on Harold MacNeven, owner of Spike's Restaurant for a few words. Spike told the group that if he had the promise of the Roscommon League to bowl in Grayling next year, he felt that all of the same high type would be available in Grayling for Grayling is a hive of industry these days and everywhere there is an air of hustle. T. H. McArdle of Ionia and his crew of men are here and have started the work of paving Michigan Avenue from the depot to Michelson Memorial Church.

The Cincinnati, the official publication of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce in its April issue commented favorably about two articles manufactured by Joe H. ## Wayne Students Follow Engrossing Tales of Treasure Buried in State

"There's gold in them thar hills" might make many Michiganders think of fields of hay and corn waving in the wind, but to some the saying would suggest the many thousands of dollars in buried treasure that supposedly exist beneath Michigan's soil and waters.

Fortunes in such valuables as gold, greenbacks, copper, silver, and whiskey have been lost in various ways: by retreating armies which buried their gold with intentions of recovering it later, by criminals who hid their loot, and by ships which sank in Michigan waters.

Students at Wayne University in Detroit have found that some of the treasure stories have an undoubted basis in historical fact. Others are more properly "mariners' myths" and "treasure lore."

Perhaps the most interesting of Michigan's treasure lies at the bottom of the Great Lakes, they have discovered.

Several Wayne faculty members have shown considerable interest.

The late Joseph P. Golden, assistant professor of history, studied the historical aspects of the treasure troves. Associate Professor Thelma Janga, director of Wayne's folklore project, has traced old treasure tales in her research.

With the help of these advisors, the students have drawn up the following list of reported buried and sunken treasure in Michigan:

On the Fortenatis Zukas Farm, Scottville... $85,000 in gold

On the Steiner Farm, Belleaire... Indian hoard

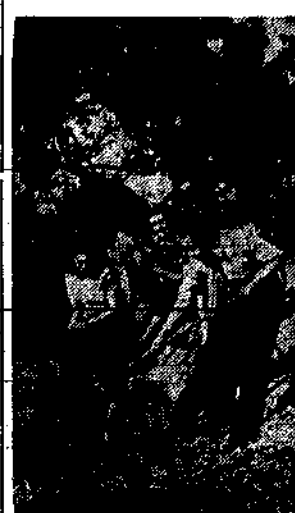

Aboard the vessels "Blue Boy" and "Minnie West", lost near Charlevoix... Whiskey totaling 1,300 bbl.

On schooner "Venus", near Northport... Government payroll

On Bennington Farm, Dimon... Chicago Bandit treasure

Aboard the "Westmoreland", near Frankfort... $10,000 in gold

On the Dellen Farm,

On the site of one of Michigan's fabulous treasure hoards, near Frankfort, Wayne students explore the ground.

Grand Rapids... The Robbers' Loot In Crystal Lake, near Whitehall... Riches of unknown value and origin

Near L'Estivant Pines, Keewenaw Peninsula... $25,000 in silver

Aboard the "City of Detroit", Saginaw Bay... $50,000 in copper

Aboard the "Lexington", not far from Monroe... 110 bbl. of whiskey

Aboard the "Anthony Wayne", near Traverse City... 300 bbl. of whiskey

Somewhere in River Rouge area... A kettle of General Hull's gold

Not One of Michigan's Snakes Has Deadly Bite, Wayne Biologist Says

Anyone planning a vacation or a hunting trip in Michigan can omit that bottle of snake-bite remedy in packing his bags.

According to Dr. Charles W. Creaser, chairman of the Wayne University biology department, in Detroit, no one in the state has ever been known to die from the poison of the bite of a local snake.

"Contrary to popular belief, many Michigan snakes thought to be venomous are completely harmless," states Dr. Creaser. "The only poisonous type in the state is the massasauga, or swamp rattler. Its bite may give a person a few bad hours but has not been known to cause death in Michigan."

Death-dealing rattlers are, of course, found in other parts of the United States, and fear of them is widespread.

"People not only mistake Michigan's non-deadly rattler for the deadly type, but they also mistake the common water snake for the water moccasin; and the fox snake, because of its copper color, for the copperhead. Wholesale slaughter of harmless specimens has resulted."

The bite of a harmless snake is easily distinguished from that of a poisonous specimen, Dr. Creaser points out. Non-poisonous snakes, such as abound in Michigan, have needle-sharp teeth that produce a whole group of tiny punctures. The wound of the harmful snake, on the other hand, consists of one or two distinct punctures in the flesh, made by one or both of the two fangs which carry the poison.

Snake-bite wounds in general appear more dangerous than they really are because of the profuse bleeding. Snake saliva encourages blood flow by preventing coagulation.

Along with popular misconceptions about possibilities of death from Michigan snakes, other mistaken ideas have sprung up, Dr. Creaser says. Milk snakes do not milk cows, whip snakes do not beat people to death, and rattlers do not need to be coiled to strike.

Michigan Mirror

While the political whirl keeps Michigan in a continual tizzy—and will until next November—the state again is afflicted with Communism.

Since the hearing of Rep. Potter's congressional subcommittee in Detroit, the state has been buzzing with the "did you know" whispering which normally follows any investigation or exposure.

Now more investigations are in the air—especially in Wayne county.

Are these political overtones? Well, it can not be denied that Potter's political career was not injured by his work in Detroit. Nor has Kefauver been hurt by his work in the now socially proper "corruption investigation" which now is almost mandatory before a man can run for any office.

But what are the results of such committees? Kefauver's probe resulted in the jailing of Costello for a short time for contempt of congress.

Potter's committee revealed that Communism is rife in Local 600, the Ford company's United Auto Workers union. That was important, of course, since Local 600 has 50,000 to 60,000 members and is the largest union local in the world.

But it wasn't news. Since the union organized the plant in 1943, it has been known to the state police and anyone else who took the trouble to ask that the union was controlled by the reds and pinks.

More important so far as the people are concerned is that the committee put their information on public record by its questioning.

All Communist Witnesses—that is, these known Communists—refused to testify, hiding behind the

Local Soldier Promoted To Master Sergeant

With the 2nd Infantry Div. in Korea — Fabian J. Charron, 302 Fulton st., Grayling, Mich., was recently promoted to master sergeant while serving on the muddy Korean battlefield with the 2nd Infantry Division.

Patrols from the division have been probing Communist positions along the central front despite the handicap of mud, fog and rain typical of Korea in the spring. M. Sgt. Charron, a member of the 9th Infantry Regiment, entered the Army in August 1950.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

fifth amendment of the U. S. constitution, a document they have fore sworn as archaic and decadent.

Friendly witnesses, ex-Communists and fellow travelers, exposed Communists throughout the state, naming some and giving detailed accounts of Red activities throughout the state.

But the testimony primarily was concerned with Wayne county, which of course, houses the world's automobile center and is more currently the crucible for molding weapons of defense—and war.

What will a new investigation show?

It will bring out many new facets of the battle against Communism if ALL the evidence now collected is brought out.

Donald S. Leonard, who as state police commissioner, asked for an investigation, saying he had proof of a Communist conspiracy against the constitution and its laws.

Such an investigation would:

1. Put state police records before the public.
2. Allow more time and manpower for an investigation than could be allowed by congressional probes.
3. Bring pinks and fellow travelers into the open.
4. Bring the seriousness of the situation to public attention.

Official sanction for an investigation would add a great deal of impetus to a program of prosecuting the Communics in Michigan.

But from there on, we're on our own. When a reporter gets involved in Communist investigations he suddenly finds there is no one to quote or authenticate statements.

But this observer predicts that (1) Communism in state government will be de-emphasized and (2) little will be done to expose Red activities in our schools, universities and colleges.

The pressure will just be too great.

Things you'd like to know about your Railroad

Two Sides of a Railroad Ledger

1. MAIN INCOME ITEM is freight. It brings in about 70% of New York Central's income. That's why it's been so serious for freight rates to lag far behind wages and supply costs... leaving your Railroad too little net earnings to go on with all improvements planned to serve you better.

2. PASSENGER TICKETS provide only about 15% of Central's income. Another 11.8% comes from mail, express, and even such items as vending machine concessions in stations... for these days, a railroad needs every penny! The final 2.8% of Central's 1951 income came from investments.

3. 110,000 PAY ENVELOPES plus employee benefits take 60% of all Central income. Almost 24% goes for fuel, rails, and hundreds of things Central buys at prices that have risen far more than its own rates! Depreciation takes 4.4%. Interest, rent, etc., 6.8%. Taxes 4.2%. Leaving 1.8% net.

4. EVERYBODY SHARES! In 1951, Central railroaders spent $468,548,000 pay in states and towns like yours. The things Central bought helped farms and local industries. It's one more way your Railroad forms a living part of every community on its lines. And that's the CENTRAL IDEA!
